Principal

General management and supervision of the school is the responsibility of our principal, whose broad interpretation of a logical, yet interesting, educational program is illustrated by the various NTHS activities flourishing under his endorsement and support.

Mr. Cotanche is identified with the phenomenal development of a school whose life span is still less than a decade. From a rich background of personal experience and through habit of daily study of a multiplicity of intricate factors, he has evolved a basic school philosophy which is organically adapted to local opportunities and limitations. The unity between the school and the Board of Education is a realization of his advisory position to the Board.

Though ever busy with school projects, he plays an important role as an outstanding citizen of the community; and, indeed, regards fulfillment of community obligations an essential phase of the school administrator's service.

Through excellent leadership, Mr. Cotanche has integrated students, faculty, and school facilities into a co-operative unit which is at once workable and flexible.

Office

Miss Irene Tess, clerk, and Miss Laura Ross, secretary, staff our busy center of official communications and records.

Board

The Board of Education enjoys the respect and admiration of the entire township for its fine administrative record. That our new school is ranked among the most soundly designed and handsomely equipped educational plants now to be found in Chicagoland, is a tribute of which this group is most deserving.

Last summer, the sudden death of Mr. Frank Ambler, member of the Board from Lincolnwood, marked the close of a period of service that began with the inception of the high school. Mr. Ambler's passing represented a loss which was felt in every quarter of the township.

Mr. Willard E. Hertzberg of Lincolnwood was appointed to serve out the unexpired term of Mr. Ambler.

Assistant Principal

The Guidance program of NTHS is in the capable hands of Mr. Flagg. He conducts courses in orientation, plans vocational assemblies, arranges personal interviews, directs guidance functions of all teachers, and is evolving a student program of study integrated on class levels; namely, freshmen adjustment to high school, sophomore personality study, junior formulation of correct social habits, and, finally, senior preparation for advanced work, whether academic or commercial.

The warm interest and practical advice which Mr. Flagg brings to each student who seeks a better understanding of the high school curriculum are creating a widespread appreciation of the true usefulness of his specialized service.

Mr. Flagg maintains professional contact with co-workers in the field through his prominent participation in the activities of the Midwest Guidance Association, an organization which has as its sine qua non "Education is Guidance."

Library

This year, all the world celebrates the 500th anniversary of Johann Gutenberg's invention of movable type.

MISS MYERS

The library is the heart of any school. Without a good one, students and teachers are at a great disadvantage. Our library is very young and is therefore in a stage of rapid growth. In the course of a few years, it will compare favorably with the library of any high school of equal size.

Even the most critical observer would warm to the beauty of our reading room. The expansive, circular tables, the luxurious chairs, the perfect lighting, the artistic appointments—all contribute to the comfort and pleasure of the library patron. Four conference chambers and a magazine alcove flank the reading room.

Miss Myers, our capable librarian, says: "We have only begun on the long task of building a well-rounded library. As the cataloging progresses, material will become more available. In adding to the collection already begun, we strive for close co-operation with the various departments, as it is our purpose to serve all.

Today the well-educated man must not only possess information, but must understand how to seek and find it for himself. This is the goal of our library—to help our students to help themselves."

C. A. Nelson.

Cafeteria

SCENE I

SCENE: Schoolroom.

TIME: Just before the noon bell.

Students sit upright in chairs, books piled neatly (?) on their desks, one arm braced for a speedy start. Teacher speaks tensely as she, too, becomes uneasy. She is now giving the assignment.

TEACHER: We have several things to do tomorrow. First . . . let's sit still till the bell rings . . . pages 843 to 900 . . . I want an outline . . . The bell hasn't rung yet!!! Sit back in your places. Why are you in such a rush? Now concentrate on your . . . Edward! Stop talking!! Open your books to page 843 and start reading. I don't want to see a book closed until the bell has rung! (Pause). Quite, please!!!!

Students look furtively at one another and at the teacher. Their eyes stray inevitably to the clock which has somehow become unco-operative. It's past bell time. Some crouch and start impulsively several times—one gets up from his seat and is saved only by the good old bell. At last! Right on time.

Curtain

SCENE II

Offstage is a great clamor of voices, slamming and dropping of books. (Sound like Histories.) The din grows nearer, and voices can be heard: "Wonder if they got hamburgers today? (June Berg?); "Boy, do I smell baked beans?"; "I got in line first, chisler!"; and, "Hey, Mickey, no fair—get back in line with the other little girls." Trays and silverware clash and glasses tinkle. The shuffle of feet and clamor of voices die away. The curtain opens.

SCENE: Cafeteria.

TIME: First part of lunch hour.

MOOD: Mixed atmosphere of industry and contentment. Chairs are occupied, row on row. Countless plates, bowls, and cups resound to the strokes of knife, fork and spoon. Soup, sandwiches, and salads disappear. Talk dies to a murmur. Here and there a pupil relaxes blissfully before his empty plate. Soon grins of complete satisfaction are epidemic.

EDWARD: (Glances apprehensively at the clock): Gosh! Why can't they hold up that bell?!

Laura Nunemacher.

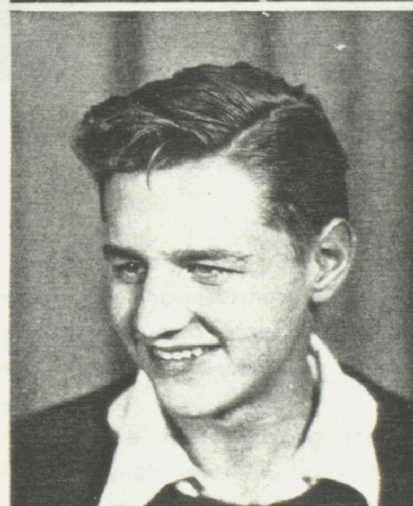

UPPER LEFT: Source of taste teasing odors and appetite whetting flavors is the busy, cheery school kitchen. In charge are Mrs. Schuler, Mrs. Kestenholz, Mrs. Harms, and Mrs. Schoening. UPPER RIGHT: That comfortable feeling that pervades the brief after-lunch respite is here mirrored in two hundred faces. LOWER RIGHT: The sundaes must be good to judge by the smile on Gerry Deily's face as she pays cashier, Miss Irene Tess. Bill Taylor and Miss Line cast a bemused eye on three hungry customers. At the extreme left, Rita Jane Fisher delicately manages a spoon, while . . . well, has Jack Kelly finished his?

Lively, progressive leadership, and skilful, imaginative sponsorship enabled the Foreign Language Club to set a 1939-40 record of achievements that rings a challenge to FLC members of next year.

There are four language-student groups at NTHS: French, German, Spanish and Latin. Each conducts, in cyclic turn, the monthly assembly programs of the club. Playlets, movies, guest speakers, music, all dealing with the cultural aspects of the foreign languages studied, made interesting fare this past year. Occasionally the entire student body was fortunate enough to be invited. The year's activities closed with a picnic.

There couldn't possibly have been another president more "wrapped up in his office" than was Henry Maier. His co-operative spirit at the meetings and his able delivery of bulletins over the speaker system attested to his competency. And great credit very deservedly goes to the capable co-sponsors, Miss Marjorie Ronalds and Miss Kranz, for their excellent directorship. Foreign language course enrollment should mount next year.
